For four days, she fought through the darkness of her unconscious, and for weeks she fought for answers as to why her long-term boyfriend was more of a stranger, while she felt so connected to the Irish stranger at her hospital bedside. The apprehension, fear, anxiety, scars she had no memories of gaining and an unfamiliar passion which spawned each time she was in close proximity to the stranger, provided a wake-up call. Receiving something she secretly craved helped regain the memories of the 3 years she had lost...and nothing could prepare her for the gut-wrenching truth. Kady discovered she had gone from fighter to victim at the hands and manipulation of the one person she truly loved - The one person who was supposed to love and cherish her. Beatings, emotional cruelty and mental torture were an everyday occurrence. This was her life... Now, shes back and so are her memories. With Irish at her side to protect her and maintain any residual fight she has left, can she finally break free of Liams hold? What remained left of the fighter, fought to discover that she, at the lowest point of her life, was a victim. Now she must continue to battle against the darkness before she can call herself A SURVIVOR.
